SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I wonder if you are not expecting too much when you demand, in a recent very-much-to-the-point editorial, that every candidate for office in the Commonwealth tell exactly where he stands on important issues.

Some of the candidates, it is true, already are out in the open, but it is unfortunately true that in many instances these men are not the ones who finally are elected. All too often the political trimmers and dodgers play the game so well that we

MISS MARGARET RICHARDSON ROSEVELE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rosevele, of Dedham, who had originally intended to be married in the fall, is being married today at the home of the bride in Coolidge street, Dedham. The bride is to be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Roger Walter, of Boston, and her brother, Mr. Morgan Butler, to be best man. The ceremony, which is to be performed by the Rev. H. H. State Federation President Forwards Suggestions on Tercentenary Plans

BY NANCY BREWSTER

Many clubs of the State Federation of Women's Clubs still planning their contributions to the celebration of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary are asked to take cognizance of these suggestions from Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, state president and chairman of the co-operating committee of the Federation.

"Clean up, paint up, prepare to entertain your guests' campaign, have your gardens filled with flowers and your lawns with grass.

"Entrance signs on all roads leading into your city or town with name of such and welcome in electric light if possible.

"Roadside signs and sidewalks in good condition, streets, squares and homes decorated and lighted."

The State Federation wants its constituent organizations to make a good showing in the celebration this year and while many have already done so, some clubs are still in the process of co-operating with the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary. If these requests are faithfully pursued the towns will profit by the improvement and visiting Americans from other parts of the country will be more impressed not only with the cleanliness and efficiency of municipalities but with the beauty and regulated landscape.

Five Summer Schools
for Y.W.C.A. Folk
Announced by Board

Five summer schools in five states are announced by the National School of the Young Women's Clubs, which is held in July and part of August, especially for secretaries and lay workers desirous of studying the philosophy and technique of the club.

There is a choice of locality from Mexico, Poland, Me., courses for camp counselors will be held next month and during the summer. Mrs. W. C. A. secretaries who work in New York city will be the scene of the last of the four girl reserve, student, business and professional and industrial secretaries, starting today until August 1.

Miss Clara Van Heck, one of America's most capable hostesses, has installed two pianos in the music room of her new house, Cadogan Gardens, Bay in America, starting today until August 1.

The end of the music room will harbor a her to keep her guests in cocktails. Another American improvement, a new and modern bathroom. Every item is carried out in pink and blue.

What promise to be the unique party of the present season was that given by Miss Eliza Maxwell, one of the American visitors, in the beautiful Chelsea home of Mrs. Somerset Livingston.

As each guest entered, he or she was ushered into a room piled high with silk, satin, velvets, colored papers, artificial flowers, feathers, masks and other things.

While the guests, the guests were asked to fashion their own costumes before proceeding in the ballroom. The costumes were markedly beautiful, but not a few added a touch of comedy.

THE HEALTH and cleanliness of the community and recreation in the community can be combined, it is suggested. Then the city's municipal buildings, city's streets and the lining in the city for another treatment. And the last way to take the form of an open lunch, a guest or dinner with guests and a guest speaker, either the mayor or some one from the city council, department heads, city architect, city engineer, president of community service organizations.

The idea being to get every clubwoman in the Commonwealth to know how to get along with officials and her city's possibilities.

American Youth Hurt in French Auto Crash

Tailored Ensembles Are Popular in Paris

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

THE STREET SCENE shows much of interest in a sartorial way, with emphasis placed on little soft fabric suits and dresses cut on rather tailored lines and softened by touches of lingerie and pique trimming.

The comfort and cool smartness of such frocks is unquestioned, and they are infinitely preferable to the elaborately cut chiffon frock for daytime informal wear, for trimpings are a desirable essential of the mode for all but formal outfits.

Suits of this woolens are in great demand here, as are frocks of shantung, crepe de chine and wool crepe. Very little trimming or ornamentation is to be found in these frocks and suits, the absence of such details adding to their desirability.

Another thing to be noted in the scarcity of costume jewelry, a most advisable idea in sultry weather when it is as important to look cool as to keep it off. It is to be happy and benefit from the sunshine.

Both of the models sketched for today's page are cut on smartly tailored lines. The first is a tailored ensemble from Lanier, too extremely successful with frocks of this type. It is of rough surfaced shantung in beige with a wide spaced line in brown. The jacket-like blouse opens in front.

The second model is a frock of white silk pique. The three-quarter length skirt is of the tailored cuts of the pique.

The bolero-jacket suit is from Lelong's new collection, and is of light gray in light weight quality with a blouse of white handkerchief linen. The bow, which fastens the skirt, is on the coat, edged with white lace and a narrow side of the same fabric borders the cuffs.

The long panel at the front of the skirt is laid in several side pleats. Pieces of the material trim the sides of the skirt and the sleeves. The color combination of blue and white is especially delicious for the present time of year.

State Federation of Music Clubs, her Boston friends will be pleased to hear. At present, Mrs. Kelley is traveling to all parts of the country as national chairman of the state biennial.

which visiting women from England and America might come.

There has been organized a dramatic division and an educational division. Under the guidance of Mrs. Gaudin, the membership has been divided into circles to sew and knit for the poor children of Rome. The club of Mrs. Gaudin, drawing room, library, resident hostess' room, saloon, hall and kitchen.

Gertrude Sims Hodgson is president of the association, and Mrs. Walter Lowry the vice president. Unofficial presidents include the wife of the British ambassador and the wife of the British legation.

Organized in 1914 with a present membership of 22 and purpose of sociability, the O. T. Club is headed by Mrs. W. J. Xavier of Clifton. Other officers include Mrs. Thomas Collins, Arlington Heights, reading secretary; Mrs. Rudolph Laid, Winthrop, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Shirley Smith, Lexington, treasurer.

The far-reaching value of the club movement has taken root in Rome, where 140 English speaking women of the American and British colonies have formed what they call the Anglo-American Association of Boston.
